Stolen continents: The "New World" Through Indian Eyes by Ronald Wright, is one of the most important books about Canada by a Canadian. To write this moving and engaging book Wright chose five groups: the Aztek, the Maya, the Inca, the Cherokee, and the Iroquois. It is, of course, the Iroquois who lived around the Great Lakes with whom Canada has been most closely associated.

But the New World's people did not all perish and neither did their view of history, though it has been suppressed for centuries. In Stolen Continents, Wright quotes the authentic speech and writing of five indigenous peoples - Aztec, Maya, Inca, Cherokee and Iroquois - over a span of 500 years. We relive their strange, tragic experience through their eloquent words and see the European invaders through their shrewd, unblinking eyes.
